WALT: To be able to trace over time how several aspects of national history are reflected in the local area

Over the next six weeks we will be looking at how national history has impacted the Stroud Valley and nearby area that is local to us.

We will be working in chronological order (meaning date order)- beginning with prehistoric times all the way to the current day. Prehistoric is prehistory, which means before history was recorded such as the stone age for example.

We are going to be researching the following in today's lesson and recording our findings in the table below.

You are going to be researching Windmill tump long barrow at Rodmarton. You will then be comparing this site to either the Nymphsfield or Uley long barrow (you decide which one you would like to choose). You will be saying if there are any similarities (what's the same) and differences (what is different)- use your notes from last lesson for this.

Use this website and any non-fiction books you have about this site.
